Toy Show in Daly City

A 'Tomato' Stands Out

By FRANK LaPIERRE
Talking to a tomato can be very informative, especially if that tomato happens to be Sarah Tomato, makeup artist extraordinaire.

Sarah caught our attention during a pre-opening tour of the 1976-77 Toy Show, which ended its three-day run at the Cow Palace in Daly City Sunday.

Despite all the latest creations on display at the show, Sarah stood out like a tomato in a bowl full of lemons.

Dressed like a huge red tomato (thus, the name), with sequined makeup on her face, and wearing striped stockings, Sarah immediately attracts attention.

For the past 4½ years, Sarah has been painting people "in any form they want to be."

The Berkeley artist was painting a young girl as a butterfly during our stopover at her booth on the main arena floor of the huge exhibition hall.

"Now, she can be a butterfly and flit around the show," Sarah said, as she put the finishing touches on the girl's face.

Sarah's relationship to toys is anybody's guess.

Perhaps, she could be put in the "living doll" category, and no one would argue that point.

But, then, there were very few exhibits at the show that truly could fall in the toys or game category.

There were skateboards priced from $12 to over $55.

Comic and coloring books were bidding for a strong comeback and appeared to be attracting considerable attention.

Cameras, water beds (for hobbyists?) metal detector kits, organs, CB radios and a single engine one person airplane... all were on display.

The plane, produced by Jim Bede Aircraft of Newton, Kansas, is capable of zipping through the wild blue yonder at speeds of 200 miles per hour.

There is also a jet model that travels considerably faster.

The wings fold back and the tiny aircraft can be towed behind one's car.

DC Won't Yield Ambulance Control

By FRANK LaPIERRE

San Mateo County's new paramedical ambulance service, scheduled to begin operations the end of this year, doesn't appeal to the City Council in Daly City.

The five members of that council made their dislike for the county's contracted ambulance company, a Southern California firm, abundantly clear during an informational hearing on the subject Monday.

After listening to principal speakers for and against the new program, the council unanimously voted not to turn control of ambulances operating in Daly City over to the county health officer.

Councilmen William Schumacher and McRobert L. Stewart vigorously questioned why the county, in its desire to upgrade public emergency health service here, hired an ambulance company from Los Angeles.

"We're trying to keep people in our county working. We shouldn't be importing people from Los Angeles," Schumacher said.

Until May 16, 1967, Daly City provided its own ambulance service. Since that time, Mercy Ambulance Co. has provided 24-hour per day emergency ambulance service through an agreement with San Mateo County.

This contract will be terminated on Dec. 1, and the handling of emergency cases turned over to MEDEVAC, a Pasadena company, David Thoen, County Emergency Medical Service administrator, told the council.

Thoen estimated that 36 per cent of all ambulance calls now being answered by the five companies operating in the county will be handled by MEDEVAC as paramedic calls.

The remaining 64 per cent, considered "routine responses," will continue to be handled by those ambulance companies now operating in the county, the council was informed.

Eventually, it is anticipated that the county will have 30 ambulances manned by 400 paramedics.

Thoen threw facts and figures at the five council members during the hearing: Response times from pre-designated points where ambulances would be located, training and certification of paramedical personnel and manning of ambulances.

Cost estimates for annual operation of the MEDEVAC operation is $658,634, coming from local taxpayers.

South San Francisco already has a certified paramedic organization, paid for by citizens of that city at the rate of about $1 per person per year, Fire Chief Lawrence Toellner said.

The county's new programs will work with Toellner's paramedics, rather than replace them, Thoen said.

However, Toellner said he is concerned that South San Francisco's taxpayers will be hit double for something they already have. They will be paying for the new ambulance company and also for their own locally-controlled paramedics, the chief said.

Although Toellner said he thinks MEDEVAC will provide good services he voiced a strong belief that the fire service can and should provide paramedical service to communities.

"Let private companies provide the transport," Toellner said.

Paramedics currently attend injured or stricken persons at the scene, but victims are transported to a hospital by private ambulance contracted by the county for such services.

Daly City wants to study the feasibility of establishing its own paramedical units, Schumacher said. If this proves to be the best avenue toward improved health care services for citizens, the council should act on it, Stewart said.

Stewart pressed Thoen for information on the county program and why a Los Angeles-based ambulance firm, rather than a local firm, was awarded the contract.

Thoen said MEDEVAC met all the criteria set forth by the council. It was not simply a low-bid arrangement, Thoen said.

MEDEVAC could provide certificated paramedics and also would provide 1976-model ambulances, Thoen said.

On the other hand, Mercy-Peninsula Ambulance Co. was offering used vehicles, some with more than 60,000 on the speedometer, Thoen said.

Mercy Ambulance Co. president Kevin McDonald argued that the outline he presented to the county on the paramedic bid promised that his company would buy all new ambulances if he were awarded the contract. The

Report on Vista Grande TV

Capable of Good Picture

Vista Grande Cable television has been constructed in Daly City with good quality material and is capable of delivering top quality pictures, a consulting firm report revealed Monday.

But the report, compiled in recent weeks by Hammett & Edison, Inc., of San Francisco, tempered its compliments by pointing out that "certain deficiencies cause the present condition of the system to be unsatisfactory by any reasonable performance criteria."

The report was paid for by the cable company, with the city selecting the firm. It was completed on Sept. 9 and turned over to the council during public hearings Monday.

Vista Grande has been the subject of much criticism over poor picture reception and service in recent years.

The report, presented by Jerome E. Partch, suggested the city periodically monitor the system to ensure adequate reception and service to patrons.

About 15 persons voiced complaints over the continued poor service in their respective areas during the hearing. The council said all complaints would be checked out.

The hearing was continued until Sept. 20 to hear more opinion.

Meanwhile, Councilman McRobert Stewart asked that the city's proposed Juvenile Diversion Program be relocated in a vacant house on 92nd Street, adjacent to City Hall, instead of in the Lincoln Park area.

Some residents of the Lincoln Park neighborhood voiced opposition to having the program located in their area.

The Juvenile Diversion Program is for youth who do not commit "hard" crimes.

Stewart said the public outcry, while he did not necessarily agree with it, over location of the JDP in the Lincoln was so great he believes it his responsibility to act on the issue.

Councilman William Schumacher disagreed with Stewart, saying that if the JDP were to be moved it might undermine the program.

But, Stewart argued for getting the programs in operation so the people can see its benefit to youth.

State Supreme Court Action Tuesday

Mountain Suit: Unusual Assignment

The California Supreme Court Tuesday assigned the lawsuit which seeks a reversal of the County Board of Supervisors' rejection of development along portions of San Bruno Mountain to the District Court of Appeal in San Francisco.

The unusual order means that the San Mateo County Superior Court will be bypassed.

Normally, legal actions begin at the superior court level and work up to the DCA and Supreme Court.

But attorneys for Visitation Associates, developers of San Bruno Mountain, Friday, filed a lawsuit in both the Supreme Court and the Superior Court.

The suit argues that county supervisors ignored regional housing shortages when reaching their 3 to 2 decision to reject development in the "saddle area" of the mountain last March. Visitation had plans to build 5,240 residential units in that area.

Attorney Howard Ellman told reporters that he took the case directly to the Supreme Court because the issue of whether regional housing shortages should be a consideration in land use determinations had never before been argued. The DCA has not scheduled a hearing date.

Supervisors did approve a modified plan last March for development on San Bruno Mountain, one which allowed construction of 2,238 housing units. The split vote was to leave the 327-acre saddle area in open space.

The suit charges that supervisors avoided considering all "relevant" aspects of the plan, and based its decision purely on open-space considerations.

The suit was filed simultaneously in San Mateo County Superior Court in Redwood City and the State Supreme Court in San Francisco.

If the Supreme Court refuses to take jurisdiction, a date will be set in Redwood City for a hearing on a motion, Judge Carey said.

In his suit, Ellman cited a purported housing shortage in San Mateo County and the "need for more construction jobs" as two major relevant issues he alleged were not given proper consideration by the county supervisors.

The supervisors' action on March 17 was in the form of an amendment to the county general plan.

The lawsuit alleges that the general plan amendment "deliberately and wrongfully fails to take into account a regional need for housing."

For Tongans, Samoans

Island Culture Contrasts Sharply With Urban Pace

By JOHN HORGAN

Early on the morning of May 24, 1974, the Tongan household of David Nafahu of Foster City was quiet. Most of the 12 Tongans in the big, rambling home at 875 Arcturus Circle were asleep just before 3 a.m. that Friday.

It was at that point that the nightmare began.

An explosion ripped through a laundry room on the first floor. Flames quickly engulfed much of the house, trapping people upstairs. Terror gripped the Tongans.

One man, David Teu Taumoepeau, 64, of South San Francisco, perished.

The house was totally destroyed in the conflagration. Several other homes in the neighborhood were also damaged. The total loss came to more than $125,000. It was one of the worst fires in Foster City's history.

It was a fire which could have been prevented.

Local fire officials say they believe that a tragic lack of communication between the Tongans and American society contributed greatly to the cause of the blaze.

Such a condition is not new here. People from the South Pacific Islands who have settled in the Bay Area and San Mateo County are finding it difficult to cope with much of what they find.

Technically, the reason the fire began in Foster City was because a forced-air furnace was denied proper air circulation.

Foster City Fire Chief William Tonguet says the Tongans had piled boxes of flammable materials and clothing next to the furnace.

Gas then built up inside the furnace. Finally, the gas was ignited by a water heater's pilot light.

The fire never should have happened. Says Tonguet, "People from urban America would not have piled those boxes there. They would have known better. But people from the South Pacific Islands accumulate a lot of light, combustible material. And they seem to be clutterers. There should be a program to condition these people to urban American living."

But, for the most part, there isn't. The record of adjustment to the phenomenon of the Polynesian migration to this area is not a good one.

Neither culture — the white majority society or the South Pacific Islanders — understands the other especially well. For many Polynesian people, the American experience has become a case of paradise unfulfilled.

They are a friendly, warm people with strong family ties, say teachers and social workers. However, it is also said that many Tongans and Samoans have had difficulty adapting their island culture to the rapid pace of Bay Area life.

The problems are many and complex. What occurred two years ago in Foster City is just one sad example of the perplexing array of challenges which Polynesians must learn to handle.

To begin with, no one is certain how many Polynesians live in this county today.

Estimates run as high as 10,000 but it is believed that the total is lower than that, perhaps 6,000 to 7,000.

There are sizable pockets of Samoans in Daly City, South San Francisco and San Bruno.

Tongans live mainly in San Mateo, Burlingame, San Bruno, East Palo Alto and Redwood City.

The arrival of this sizable minority population has not been a sudden thing.

Samoans, Tongans and other Polynesian groups have been slowly but steadily coming to this county for years.

But they are a shadow minority group. The federal and state governments do not break down minorities into a category for Polynesians.

They are usually listed as Asian-American, Spanish-surname or "other."

They have no special identity as far as the government is concerned.

"The Polynesians are coming in dribs and drabs," says Theodore Lude, a supervisor with the county's division of social services.

"For the most part, they are not visible. They have not come here all at once as the Vietnamese did."

Still, the concerns of the Polynesians are considerable.

Language is probably the greatest barrier separating the cultures at this time.

Many older Tongans and Samoans speak virtually no English at all. They have trouble filling out government forms and dealing with the bureaucracy.

Few are willing or capable of applying for social services," says Lude.

Coming from a culture which is less competitive than this one, the Polynesians tend to be relaxed and passive when it comes to pursuing the kinds of services they need.

Mata'u Taele

"They don't have the sort of tenacity needed to get through the system," says Lude.

He adds that the government tends to "lose them" even after they make an initial contact.

"They are very casual. Forms are not completed properly. Weeks go by and we don't see them. They give up."

But Polynesians here can fall back on a family structure which protects them from the vagaries of the American system.

Samoans and Tongans both adhere to what is called the extended family, a familial setup which embraces any number of relatives and, often, friends.

Polynesian families can be huge by American standards. And they greatly frustrate social workers and others interested in their welfare.

They often list as children young-

At $20,000 assembled $5,000 for the kit it is considered a rather expensive "toy."

THE SAN FRANCISCO-BASED "Interail" model train club, a worldwide organization, had an impressive layout that stretched for about 100 feet between a mountain range, across a Kansas plain, to an urban area.

An enthusiast manning the switches at the exhibit said the hobby got those folks "who are tired of running around in circles back on the right track."

Many of the models are collectors' items, while others are working designs dreamed up by the tiny train builders.

"For information on this organization write Interail, Box 99437, San Francisco 94109."

The show featured all sorts of games people play. However, one of the most unusual hobby displays was offered by Edna Tunison, of Livermore.

It seems Edna is fascinated with zippers.

She takes zippers and turns them into works of art, aptly called "Zipper Art."

Edna has been creating her artworks for the past ten years and has received numerous awards at various county fairs and art shows.

Another unusual exhibit at the show was the display at redwood hot tubs — those modified copies of Japanese "ofuro" or bathtubs, used for centuries in Japan and now becoming the rage in the United States.

Except for a few dolls, of the collectors' variety, dolls that wet, drink, burp or talk were not seen.

There were no trucks, bulldozers or other small construction equipment used by kids to mar the backyard landscape.

And, we wondered, what ever happened to those other toys of our childhood — the six-shooters, machineguns and realistic-looking rifles?

What will Santa leave under the tree this year, if not a gun, doll or truck?

Maybe he'll drop off Sarah Tomato.

Ambulance

list of ambulances was merely for informational purposes, he said.

He also had trained paramedical personnel already in his company, personnel who were about to be certified by San Francisco because he could not get them certified in San Mateo County, "although we've tried like hell to get them certified here for 14 months," McDonald said.

Thoen revealed that MEDEVAC's promise to provide new ambulances in the county also was contingent on getting the contract.

Why couldn't McDonald get his men certified as paramedics in San Mateo County, although they had been trained in that field in Southern California, Schumacher asked.

Because they did not establish an agreement with a base hospital soation here in the county, Thoen said.

And why didn't Mercy-Peninsula get such an agreement if they, indeed, had certificated paramedical personnel in their employ, McDonald was asked by Schumacher.

"San Mateo County failed to give my people certification," McDonald answered.

"This sounds like something from Catch-22 (a novel about an Air Force unit stationed in Italy during WWII)," Schumacher said in bewilderment.

Thoen denied that there was any conspiracy to prevent Mercy's personnel from being certified.

The reason they were not certified was that the paramedical school the men attended was not recognized by the L.A. County health officer, Thoen said.

Bookworm to Relate His Three Favorite Stories

Three Stories I'll Never Forget by Robert Browning is the subject selected by City Librarian Samuel Chandler for the first of the Friends of the Daly City Library's 1976-77 series of book reviews, to be offered Sept. 23, 10 a.m. in the community room of the Serramonte Library, 40 Wembley Drive.

Chandler, who has been city librarian for the past 18 years and who has library degrees from George Peabody College Tennessee, and Brigham Young University, Utah, traditionally opens The Friends' series each year. He is author of the award-winning "Gateway to the Peninsula," official history of Daly City, and for a long time he has been a Post columnist.

Chandler, besides discussing and analyzing the three poems, will present a critique on Browning as a poet.

Browning (1782-1866) achieved recognition as a great poet later in life. Elizabeth Barrett Browning, his wife, received greater compensation for her published poetry during her life-time.

Elizabeth, however, who was among those who realized the merit of her husband's work, once declared: "Robert's poems are magnificent and will raise him higher than he stands."

Ironically, it was not until after her death that Browning became celebrated and highly honored. He received an M.A. and Honorary Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford, the first of many such distinctions.

Queen Victoria was quoted: "Her Majesty had the pleasure of becoming personally acquainted with two of the most distinguished writers of the age — Mr. Carlyle and Mr. Browning. These eminent men, so far as intellect is concerned, stand head and shoulders above their contemporaries."

An outstanding Browning collection in this country is housed at Baylor University, Waco, Tex.

Mrs. Joseph Canada, book review chairman, will accept at the review reservations for a no-host luncheon to honor Chandler, which will be held at the New Southern Restaurant, South San Francisco, following the event.

The Friends' book review series, one of the oldest in continuous existence in the state, are presented as a community service. Mrs. Albert Teglia, president, invites the public to attend free of charge.

At the conclusion of presentations by the panelist, the audience will have an opportunity to ask questions.

Admission fee is $1, and registration will be held at the door. For additional information call Skyline College.

'Whys' of Crime to Be Subject

Why is the crime rate rising and what is being done to combat this trend is the topic for the final meeting of Skyline College's Community Services "Judicial Forum" series Sept. 22 at 7 p.m. in the Main Theater on the campus.

Participating in the program are Jim Swinford, South San Francisco Police Division Commander, Deputy Mike Luddy, Sheriff's Department Crime Prevention Expert, Bill Kelly, San Bruno Director of Planning and Building, and Lt. Tom Culley, Daly City Community Relations Police Officer.

Rodondi Attends Seminar

How would YOU manage your job if your workload increased each year, if regulations under which you work changed constantly, if you had thousands of bosses, and if — on top of it all — you're supposed to become more "responsive"?

This is the actual situation in which Arthur Rodondi, city clerk of South San Francisco, and his counterparts throughout California find themselves today.

They face enormous growth in records, new technology, and changing social attitudes among their "bosses" — the people they serve. In addition, new legislation and new court rulings often leave clerks puzzling over what is the "legal" way to do their jobs.

To stay effective in the midst of chaos, Arthur Rodondi just completed the first year of a three-year training at the University of California, Santa Cruz. The University Extension program consists of a six-day marathon training session each year.

The program was designed by University Extension's Institute of Continuing Education for Public Officials and was offered in cooperation with the League of California Cities, the City Clerks Association of California, and its sister association of County Clerks.

Northgate Hearing Announced

A public hearing on a resolution to exercise its powers of eminent domain to acquire Northgate Transit Co., Inc., has been scheduled by the San Mateo County Transit District.

The hearing will take place during a regular SamTrans board meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 22 at the Daly City City Council Chambers, Sullivan Ave. at 90th Street.

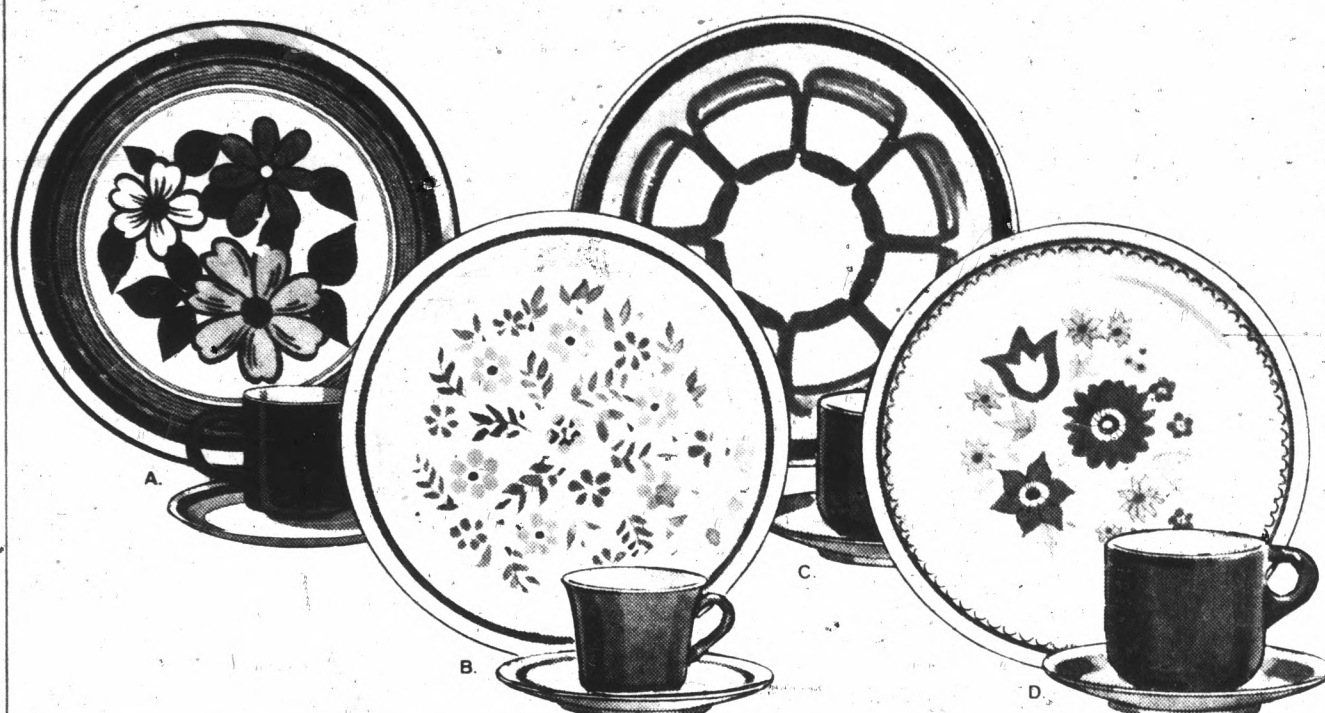

SamTrans Board Chairman Robert E. Norris said the district scheduled the public hearing only after an earlier offer to acquire the Daly City bus firm was summarily rejected.

Additionally, the Public Utilities Commission last week granted Northgate a four-month extension of a six-month "probationary certificate," and authorized a five-cent fare increase.

"We feel it our duty to alert the people of San Mateo County that this action by the PUC has the effect of inflating the value of a property it must ultimately appraise," Norris said.

"We hope the public hearing will provide an opportunity for the people of Daly City, and all of San Mateo County, to express their feelings."

The six productions are "Cinderella," "Santa Claus' Beard," "The Emperor's New Clothes," "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," "Johnny Appleseed," and "Puss in Boots."

ters who are not theirs biologically," says Lude.

That can only perplex the authorities and stymie assistance.

Lude further points out that some Polynesians change their names to fit certain circumstances, compounding an already confused situation.

The net result of all this is that, too often, Polynesians fail to take advantage of available resources.

Lude recites the case of a Samoan child who suffered from severe chest colds.

The child's family was living in Pacifica, a foggy place when compared to the family's former homeland.

The child slept on a mat on the floor as is the custom in the islands. His colds became worse. The crowded conditions in the house did not help matters.

Finally, the child was taken to Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City where the staff examined him and surmised that he might be the victim of child neglect.

Investigation proved that it was not child neglect at all. It was, however, another example of the difference in the two cultures.

"The family just didn't know where to bring the child," recalls Lude.

The county's efforts to serve the Polynesian communities have been limited because of a lack of money and specific information.

There are no county social workers who can speak a Polynesian tongue. None ministers exclusively to South Pacific Island people.

Prospects for improving this situation are not good, Lude admits.

It will be a major step if some of the more significant government forms are printed in Tongan and Samoan.

Lude was one of the participants at a July 17 "Conference on the Samoan Family" held in South San Francisco.

Several positive things emerged from that gathering, among them the possible creation of a Samoan Information and Referral Service as a branch of the existing South San Francisco Information and Referral Center.

Ben Fraticelli, the coordinator of community services for Peninsula Hospital's community mental health center in Burlingame, says the Samoan Society of San Mateo County is well on its way toward obtaining a site and a program coordinator for such a North County information center.

An application for a grant to fund at least part of such an undertaking is pending before the San Mateo Foundation.

The South San Francisco Information and Referral Center has a Tongan worker on its staff. However, Mouna Langi says she has directly worked with only 20 Polynesian families in her six months on the job.

Says she, "They are not aware of our services. There is a lack of leadership in the community. Each family tends to go its own way. Many don't know I'm even here."

Both Tongans and Samoans take care of their own people. If someone needs help, he can get it from his community. Few Polynesians are on welfare in this county, according to county officials. Work is a tradition in their islands.

Both groups here have come from proud stock. Their island heritages are strong. Retaining at least some of their important customs can be a problem in this area.

Mata'u T. Taelle of San Bruno, the chairman of the Samoan Society, says culture shock is a very real fact of life for his people here.

"The things that are important to Samoans back home are not important here," he explains. "We are losing a lot of our identity. I can see the impact of the larger society on our children already. It is not good."

Taelle, recently named a Samoan chief, says there is a push under way to have his people designated clearly in future ethnic surveys. "We want to be recognized," he says.

A STAY-AT-HOME TREASURE HUNT to help the Tin Man find his heart.

THINK-ALONG WITH THE TIN MAN

The Tin Man made a special trip to the Bay Area in search of our community's heart.

The United Way of the Bay Area assured him that the heart does exist when each year thousands of people help their neighbors in need by donating funds that are allocated to more than 190 human care service agencies.

However, the Tin Man insists on seeing a heart even if it's just a symbolic one.

United Way has symbolically placed a piece of the Bay Area's heart in Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo and San Francisco counties and is asking that Bay Area residents help the Tin Man find these pieces.

The five pieces of the heart are not physically hidden. The locations have been written and sealed in envelopes that rest in a Brinks vault.

CLUE #2

SAN MATEO COUNTY

It was a sinful neighborhood, so they said.

THINK-ALONG RULES:

1. No purchase or donation required. Fill out an official entry form or on a plain piece of paper send your answer together with your name, address and zip code, and mail to: THINK-ALONG, United Way of the Bay Area, 320 Market Street, San Francisco, CA 94111. Enter as often as you wish. Each entry must be mailed separately. Entries must be postmarked no later than November 13, 1976 and received no later than November 15, 1976. County winners will be notified by mail or phone no later than November 22, 1976. County winners will be eligible for a grand prize drawing November 30, 1976 at the United Way Final Campaign Report event location to be announced.
2. THINK-ALONG operates all residents of Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, San Mateo, San Francisco counties except United Way employees, Directors, Officers, Public Relations Committee members and member agency employees and their immediate families. County winners must reside in the county where the piece of the heart is located, i.e.: a San Francisco resident cannot win by guessing a location in Alameda county.
3. Clues will be published on Wednesday of each week in this newspaper. Or call (415) 543-2253 to get a recorded clue message.
4. In case more than one person guesses the location in the same county, the winner will be determined by the earliest postmark on the envelope. Duplicate postmark winners will be selected by a drawing. A panel of impartial judges will select the winners who come closest to the location in case no one guesses the exact location. The judges' decisions are final.

A winner in each county!

United Way Opens Drive

The 1976 San Mateo County United Way Campaign, with a goal of leading the Bay Area's $24 million drive for charitable contributions, was kicked off this morning at a breakfast meeting aboard a jumbo jetliner at International Airport.

Nearly 100 business and civic leaders and a number of press representatives gathered in the jet plane to hear campaign chairman Charles Anderson, chief executive officer of Stanford Research Institute, tell the objectives, and to see the "Tin Woodman" theme of the campaign this year.

The Tin Man, a key character in the immortal "Wizard of Oz" children's drama, has been chosen as a theme in the sense that in the play, he looked for his missing heart. In the Bay Area Crusade, an appeal and a search for the giving heart will keynote the drive.

A special feature is a newspaper-related advertising campaign which allows readers to attempt to find the hiding place of the heart in respective counties.

A metallic-suited tin man was aboard the jumbo jet today and explained that he is willing to go anywhere to find a heart.

Anderson, in a short pep talk to the volunteer leaders, said that the tin man will be available to employers, building leaders and others for rallies, and that those wishing to have him present should call the United Way Field Office in San Mateo.

He told the assembly that this year's objective is to increase the percentage of campaign contributions this year — specifically by 14 per cent, to maintain for the third year the county's Bay Area leadership.

Anderson noted that San Mateo County each year for two years has had the largest percentage increase in campaign contributions of any county in the Bay Area.

"San Mateo today has the best organization at this stage that has ever existed here," Anderson said. "Hundreds have been recruited in a wide variety of activities."

"Just as this jumbo jet is ready at the end of a runway for a transcontinental trip, we are ready to take off."

They Eat Leftovers
About 78 per cent of the beef animals diet is composed of material humans cannot use. Thus, materials that would otherwise be wasted can usefully be converted into meat when consumed by animals.

Only about 15 per cent or 350 million acres of our total land area (2.2 billion acres) is useful for crop production. About 890 million acres is good for grasses and grazing land.

BRIGHT LIGHTS BY LLOYD JOHNSON

Nick Gust's Dining Rooms Get Action

No business lull out Rockaway Beach way. NICK GUST and Family enjoyed a restaurant stampee over the weekend, what with NICK'S, THE MOONRAKER and CAPTAIN CHARLES restaurants going full speed ahead with capacity crowds. BARNEY'S CASINO, South Lake Tahoe, has added more new looks, this time in the form of equipment. When strolling through the casino it sounds like Christmas, what with bells ringing and the sounds of "Jackpot", filling the air. Barney's also affords 24-hour restaurant service—and the menu prices are not up with the jets. HARRY CURSUS and MEL CICERO are introducing another big two for one luncheon special at their BAYHILL LOUNGE in San Bruno. The purchase of one $2.95 "Daily Luncheon Special" plus the coupon appearing in "Bright Lights" entitles you to one free like luncheon. There is a choice of two entrees, one of which is Giant Ravioli. Featured 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

MURRAY LEHR, "The Green Grower," is now serving huge, four to five pound live Maine lobsters at his fabulous LEHR'S GREENHOUSE in San Francisco. You select your lobster from the tank and it is cooked to order and brought to the table on an exquisite silver platter. GLEN CAMPBELL, the "Rhinstone Cowboy," comes to HARRAH'S TAHOE for a two-week stay beginning Friday night, Sept. 17, in the South Shore Room. FRANK SINATRA concludes his "September to Remember" engagement Thursday night.

What Chasen's and The Bistro restaurants are to Beverly Hills, SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S is to the Peninsula. Here, you will find big names in the business and entertainment world rubbing elbows and enjoying such delectable dishes as Prime Ribs of Beef and Broiled Mahi Mahi Almondine served in an atmosphere that defies comparison. Why not treat the family to a meal at VINCE'S ITALIAN AND SEAFOOD restaurant, a family luncheon and dinner house if there ever was one. A great selection of seafood and Italian dishes is available seven days a week. Good food, great prices and plenty of action are just a few of the reasons for visiting the SOUTH TAHOE NUGGET at Stateline, Nev. Backdrop this with the "fun coupons" which are available at the Tahoe bound restaurant stops, and you will be in for many happy hours. One of the gourmet-worthy new dinner items at PHIL LEHR'S Wellington Room, Taylor and Ellis parking lot entrance, in San Francisco is a combination dish that PHIL calls "A Medley." It is scampi, beef, mushrooms and shallots, sauteed with flair and expertise at tableside. With all the political, baseball and football activity being televised, ENRICO ROMANO has been busy answering the phone for pizza take-out orders. Many regulars of his ROMANO'S restaurant in Rockaway Beach, Pacifica, are staying close to home and dining festively on Enrico's pizza variety and Italian dishes. The NEW SOUTHERN restaurant will have their Third Annual Gopher Fun Day on Friday, October 15. This year the tournament will be held at the Half Moon Bay Country Club, and a "shot gun" start will be at 10 a.m. that morning. Entry fee includes dinner at the New Southern restaurant following the tourney. No-host cocktails and loads of prizes are also planned. BILL STRONG is the head man in this year's event. So for further information or to enter the contest, contact him at the South San Francisco restaurant. Reserve early is our suggestion. Hey, gang, if you present the A&W's coupon before ordering (see today's "Bright Lights") you get two Teen Burgers for the special price of 99 cents. One coupon per party per visit. Offer void after September 22.

Bump, Hustle and Salsa, Black Angus

The latest dance crazes, including the Bump, Hustle and Salsa, are going on nightly from 9 p.m. to 2 a.m. in the newly-remodeled lounge of STUART ANDERSON'S BLACK ANGUS restaurant in San Mateo. Spinning the disco music each evening is CHRIS SCOTT, a New Yorker who brought the latest boogie sounds to the West Coast. SAL CAMPAGNA, HOUSE OF TROY owner, is back from a visit to Hawaii, where he joined a group of 50 on a 49er Safari to enjoy the football game. Banquet rooms at the COSTA BRAVA restaurant offer complete facilities for private parties and receptions at prices to suit any budget. There's mellow music in the intimate Don Quixote cocktail lounge, with dancing on Friday and Saturday nights. Among the groups to seek out the BEN JONSON restaurant in the Cannery, recently, were 60 teenage members of Jobs Daughters of Arcadia, the Northern California Book Setters Association of Walnut Creek, and 50 members of Botsford-Ketchum of San Francisco. All requested the Ben Jonson's famous English Trifle for dessert.

Enjoy a beautiful scenic ride and save money too with our low cost bus fare to Tahoe. When you come to Harrah's by bus, you arrive relaxed, refreshed and ready for all the fun. For ticket and bonus information, call one of the numbers listed at right.

Oops! Don't let the September meeting of the Mary's Help Hospital Guild slip by. The new schedule calls for meetings on the third Friday of each month, one week earlier than in past years, and this coming Friday is No. 3.

Mrs. Virginia Stanghellini, president of the guild, is bubbling over with enthusiasm, as a result of the exciting meeting the guild had in August when announcements about the success of the summer volunteer programs were made by Mrs. Mary McCoy, the director of volunteer services, and the various committee chairpersons reported on plans for the months ahead.

The general meeting Friday will begin with a luncheon at 12:30 p.m. in the solarium. The regular meeting of the Executive Board will begin at 10:30 a.m. There will be no tray-favor workshop in September.

AS ALL THE VOLUNTEERS report back to the hospital, four veterans will be wearing awards earned by spending numerous hours helping make patients and their loved ones comfortable at Mary's Help. Mrs. Pat Lindsay has been commended for 10,000 hours of volunteer service. Mrs. Helen Corbett has logged 9,000 hours and Mrs. Marie Knowles and Mrs. Myrtle Peck have been honored for volunteering 5,000 hours each. New to the ranks of volunteers this September are Elise Butler, Mrs. Josephine Canton, Mrs. Gladys Farr, Mrs. Marie Gardner, Mrs. Laura Hickey, Mrs. Dorothy Kinst, Mrs. Frances Munary, Mrs. Katherine O'Donnell, Mrs. Elsie Sullivan and Mrs. Marie Tobin.

Mrs. Stanghellini indicated that guests are welcome at guild meetings and no previous arrangements must be made to attend. If you feel that you would enjoy volunteering your time to this project visit the hospital Friday at noon and let the members tell you the guild story.

DALY CITY'S Mayor Anthony A. Giammona will cut the ribbon marking the start of the twenty-second annual Standard Flower Show to be staged by the Daly City Garden Club, this Saturday at 1 p.m., at the mall of the Serramonte Shopping Center.

Theme of the show, "Let Us Celebrate," will honor the shopping center's eighth anniversary, according to an announcement by Louis Filarski, president of the Garden Club and show chairman.

Everyone is invited to take part, according to the publicity chairman, Mrs. Carol Alba, and juniors, intermediates and high school entries will be judged on the same point scale as all other amateur entries.

Interested — but believe you don't have enough specific information to be an informed viewer? Members of the garden club will have an information booth in the mall and the garden club representative will be more than happy to answer questions, direct you to proper referenced materials or discuss aspects of the show with you.

The local Girl Scouts, the 4-H Club, and the Friends of the Daly City Library all lent a hand to help the Garden Club make this a successful two-day event. Show hours are from 1 p.m. until 5:30 p.m. on Saturday and from 11 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Sunday.

Lest we forget, this is still the bi-centennial year and members of Lakeside Presbyterian Church will continue their year-long celebration of that event with a special worship service on Sunday.

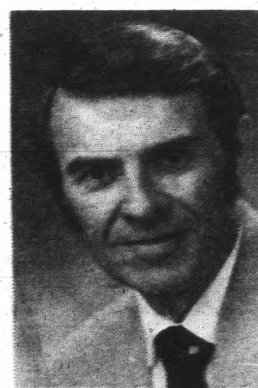

Pastor J. W. Gregg Meister will review the history of Presbyterianism in the United States during 1850-1900 and the Chancel Choir, under the leadership of James Groves will present a special service of music from the eighteenth century.

MRS. CORNELIUS MURPHY, president of the Riordan Guild, conducted the first meeting of the current school year last night in Chaminade Hall on the Riordan campus in San Francisco.

Mrs. Ronald Robles of Daly City, the guild's publicity chairwoman, reports that the agenda included an introduction of new officers and members of the Executive Board, plus a short talk by Brother John J. Haster, S.M.

TONY GILLARD, youth director for Friends Outside, is issuing an appeal for volunteers to help with the fall schedule of field trips and to do tutoring, all age levels—all subjects.

If you can help with a few hours or with a regular schedule of days, call the Friends Outside office, 863-5100.

Senior 'Day' Is Planned

Senior Forum of San Mateo County will hold a North County Day Oct. 14 at the Westlake Community Center, 145 Lake Merced Boulevard in Daly City. The Community Services Division of Skyline College is in charge of the program. Coffee and donuts will be served at 9:30 a.m. A chicken box lunch will also be available for $1.25 until 2:30 p.m.

Jeff District Administrators Shifted

Skyline College Via SamTrans

Three Jefferson district high schools opened with new administrative faces Monday — the summer movement being plentiful. Capping rumors that had been denied earlier, popular Margaret Riggs, Westmoor High's vice principal, was elevated to principal of Terra Nova High in Pacifica. Her appointment just prior to the start of school made Miss Riggs the first woman principal in the Daly City-Pacific district and started another accordion-like shuffle.

HOWEVER, THE shifts didn't come about simply because Thanos Panagoulas was promoted from Terra Nova to the district offices in the Westlake Shopping Center.

Bob Bush, the Jefferson principal, played a role in the administrative musical chairs program by taking a job elsewhere.

Thus, we saw Richard Burt moved from the Thornton principalship to Jefferson and Tom Mohr moving from the Serramonte vice-principalship to the top administrative job at Thornton, the district's continuation high school.

Then, because Mohr was elevated, Assistant Principal Guidance Dion Dubois was sent from Jefferson to Serramonte as vice principal. (Dubois' position, "reorganized to vice principal for attendance and welfare, will be advertised district-wide.)

REPLACING Miss Riggs at Westmoor is James Zylla, Jefferson's vice principal, with Jefferson assistant principal John Conroy succeeding Zylla as vice principal.

Trustees also have authorized a one-year pilot change in Jefferson High administrative titles and numbers. Instead of the previous three assistant principals, there now will be two vice principals — for operations, attendance and welfare. Other schools will continue to have three "vice principals."

Confused? Forget the titles and remember the names. They're what makes the news anyway.

IN RECENT weeks, I've been experimenting with getting from Daly City to my office in San Bruno, besides Greyhound (the bus), which has been one of my primary modes of transportation for years.

It can be done, you know, but back to that later.

The other day, a friend of mine, knowing of this experimentation, called to see if I knew a way to get from Daly City to Skyline College in San Bruno, via SamTrans. She added that her calls to SamTrans operators gained her only the information that it could not be done yet.

BUT, I SAID it could be done — just follow my instructions to get, say, to an 8 a.m. class:

Take the 7:24 a.m. San Bruno flyer from the Daly City BART station (at the bus stop opposite the trains), obtain a transfer and get off at Sneath Lane and Cherry in San Bruno at 7:35 a.m., run like hell across Sneath and catch the Portola Highlands, No. 30B, bus that also arrives at 7:35 . . . and be up at Skyline at 7:48 a.m., in time for that first class. (The schedule is the same for other times; 8:24, 8:35, 8:48, etc.)

My friend called a day later and said, "We did everything you said and it works."

FRANKLY, I'M rushing this into print today before this same friend calls up and screams, "Yesterday it DIDN'T work, you dummy."

If the schedule connections work consistently, it's a tremendous avenue (for 50-cents each way) for the Skyline student who lives in Daly City.

The return trip in the afternoon worked just as well in reverse, I'm told . . . 30B from Skyline College of Sneath/Cherry (run across the street again) and to BART, via the San Bruno Flyer.

Obviously, this whole system depends on both buses being on time or one waiting for the other that might be late. If SamTrans officials aren't instructing drivers to do that, they should.

A SamTrans telephone operator, was asked that very question, and after considerable consultation with someone else in the office, the operator gave assurances that riders should be able to make connections when two buses have the identical arrival/departure times. A bus driver also confirmed the likelihood.

Time and more use will tell.

I FOUND EARLY in the SamTrans operation that its flyers (San Bruno/Shelter Creek) do leave BART on time . . . missed 'em twice.

But, that was my fault. Two successful attempts found the driver and two passengers aboard the Shelter Creek Flyer "touring" a large area in the Crystal Springs, Shelter Creek Crestmoor region for some time before transferring, at a San Bruno Avenue point, to a bus that reached Huntington and Angus after winding through a residential area of San Bruno.

That proved to be a long morning.

EVEN LONGER was the time I took the San Bruno Flyer, changed at Sneath and Cherry as instructed, watched a 30B head for Skyline while I waited upen minutes for a bus to the SP depot.

It never came and I started what ultimately was a 40-minute walk from Sneath-Cherry to Angus-Mastick.

Never again, those two trips, except in an emergency. The next 50-cent trip hopefully will be that reaching the office in considerably less time. Since the schedules appear correct, that trip will start with BART at just before 8 a.m., arrive at Tanforan, shortly after 8, and permit transfer to a bus getting near to the office at about 8:16 . . . late, but better rested for the effort.

So far, the $2 daily plunk-out to Greyhound has continued to be the quickest way. One of these days, soon, when there's no real rush to get to work, we'll walk again to BART and try that SamTrans journey — for half what Greyhound is doing our driving for, and hope the connection delay (two or three minutes) at Tanfo makes the inconvenience worth it all.

When THAT works, we'll try to get home the SamTrans way. But, first things first.

Garbage Bills To Be Reduced

Daly City's 32-day-old garbage strike is officially over.

The City Council recognized the end of the strike at a special meeting Sept. 7 by rescinding an earlier resolution which had opened the Mussel Rock dump to free public use.

Two heavy duty plastic garbage bags also were distributed to residents of Daly City as a means of heading off health hazards in the city. More than 30,000 bags were given out during the strike.

Scavengers resumed collections at households throughout the city on Monday.

City Manager David Rowe said garbage bills will be adjusted to reflect the non-pickup period during August.

Mayor Anthony Giammona, attending his first meeting since returning from vacation, said he was glad the five-week strike was over and that issues had been resolved through mediation.

Cooperation on the part of the public helped ease the strain on the community during the strike period, Giammona said.

He praised both the council and staff for their efforts during the strike.

Councilman Al Teglia, who was acting mayor during Giammona's absence, revealed that matters "got a little hectic" in the final commission, by a 3-2 vote, established a range of zoning densities for the entire city.

Commissioners Robin Nowinski, Otis Spencer and Thomas Ricci agreed that there should be no more than eight housing units per acre in a low-density zone; 15 units in low-medium; 22 units in high-medium and 30 units in high.

Mrs. Currie and Commissioner Pat Cummins argued for higher densities.

Fraticelli. "We are talking about the future of the extended family and the tribes in America. This culture we have is contrary to the goals and ideals of the tribal system."

"The issue is assimilation. How far do you go? How much of their culture do they have to lose? How do they maintain their ethnic pride in this country?"

No one has the answers to those questions.

But the Samoans, Tongans and other Polynesians must wrestle with them each day.

"The Samoans are where other American minorities were 15 or 20 years ago," says Fraticelli. And the Tongans might be even a bit farther behind than that.

The Tongans have no organization which can speak for them. Their leadership is fragmented. They have few spokesmen who can address an institutional agency.

A reason for that is that Samoans, especially those from American Samoa, have been migrating here for more than 20 years.

When the U.S. Navy shut down its operations in American Samoa in 1961, the real exodus began. Samoans involved with the Navy had the opportunity to come to America and many did so.

Taele, for one, is a product of that migration. He came to the West Coast in 1958. He has lived in this county for the past nine years.

The Tongans are relative newcomers on the scene. Their influence here is fairly new.

And, like the Samoans, the Tongans continue to gain support from their own extended families and their churches.

Most Samoans are members of the Congregational Christian Church. Tongans frequently choose between the Methodist Church and the Mormon Church.

In this county, the Methodists and Mormons have large Tongan congregations.

The churches provide the Tongans (and the Samoans too) with much assistance.

Christianity has been a Polynesian fixture for nearly 150 years, ever since the first white missionaries arrived in the islands in the 18th century.

The churches have had a great impact on the islanders. And they have carried their faith to these shores.

Falanisi Sanft is a Mormon. He and his wife and family of six children live in

The Rev. William Noland

San Mateo. An employee of Pan American World Airways, Sanft has lived in San Mateo for ten years.

He came to America so that his children could receive a U.S. education. A Tongan, he says he came here on his own.

The church was not an influence on me at all," he says.

In the past, there has been some criticism that the Mormons have imported Tongans and then allowed them to sink or swim in this society.

Sanft denies that allegation. So does Bishop Chester Cluff of the Mormon Church's Foster City Second Ward.

"We would prefer that they come here to get an education and then return to the islands," Bishop Cluff says.

In the two wards on the mid-Peninsula, he estimates there are about 300 Tongans.

Sanft says he and his family gather twice daily to recite prayers. The influence of their religion is strong.

Sanft is interested in having his children retain as much of the native Tongan culture as possible under the circumstances.

"We have to understand ourselves," he says. "The basic values of the islands are valuable here. We were taught to respect everyone. We are from a kingdom. But some of our traditions are falling away. Our church has brought us, all people, closer together here and it is growing rapidly."

The Tongans, along with other Mormons, are involved in a fund-raising program to construct a new church in Foster City. It will cost about $1 million, says Cluff. The local congregations are going to have to come up with about 30 per cent of that total. Salt Lake City, where the church has its headquarters, will provide the rest.

Cluff sees the Tongan influx as healthy for all concerned.

"It's a matter of understanding," he says. "It is good to have both cultures mix and learn from one another. It has been very educational. I think there are some serious adjustment problems for the Tongans, particularly for the teenagers. But we find that the problems become less the longer they live here."

The Mormons have special classes for Tongans with language problems.

Adults can go to classes in their own native language. But the children are encouraged to attend classes taught in English.

The Methodists have a similar program for their Tongans.

The Hillsdale United Methodist Church in San Mateo has an English skills program called Partners in English. Tongans from both that church and the San Bruno United Methodist Church attend those classes. Some members of Redwood City Methodist churches also participate.

Dr. David Thomas

In all, the Hillsdale and San Bruno churches count more than 300 Tongans among their members.

Both churches have separate Sunday services for their Polynesians.

Recently, three members of the Hillsdale congregation journeyed to Tonga to participate in the 150th anniversary of Methodism on that island.

The three — the Rev. Daniel Haupeku, the Rev. William Noland and Louise Cox — brought a donation from the San Mateo congregation to the Tonga church.

"English is a major problem for the Tongans," admits Rev. Noland. "Although written English is taught, it isn't spoken much. The children will nod their heads and pretend they understand when you talk with them. They start learning English from the wrong end. They can read and write it, but they can't speak it."

But the churches are trying to do something about that.

Marguerite Nash, a worker at the Hillsdale church, notes that, "The churches are moving where the social agencies are not."

Church leaders are convinced that the young hold the key for the Polynesians.

The Rev. Samipeni Finau, head of the Tongan congregation at the San Bruno United Methodist Church, says, "In time, after a few years, and after our children have studied well, leaders will emerge."

There is a present paucity of leaders because, as Reverend Finau puts it, "Few have the necessary education. We are not that familiar with things here. There are many reasons."

Spokesmen for the Christian religions agree that the cultural differences separating the Polynesians from the mainstream society are significant.

They point to such elementary matters as the raising of children, discipline, boy-girl relationships and job skills as crucial factors in the adjustment mix.

"Most Tongans come here with few skills suitable for our economy," asserts Reverend Noland. "It would be as bad as dropping me off in Tonga."

If things are so difficult for them here, why do the Polynesians come to America and San Mateo County?

"Most come here to make money,"

Cities, County Tell Public Works Hopes

The County Supervisors Sept. 7 approved a document which buoys the chances of the county and 13 of its cities to secure a share of a $3 billion public works funding program recently enacted by Congress.

Supervisors approved a report called an "initial overall economic development program for San Mateo County."

Board Chairman William H. Royer Sept. 8 mailed it to the U.S. Department of Commerce's Economic Development Administration (EDA) in Seattle, Wash. That agency will pass judgment on grant applications.

The report was prepared in six weeks by a 16-member committee of government, business and labor representatives. It was chaired by Henry Anthony, chairman of the East Palo Alto Municipal Council.

The county and 13 cities will be seeking several million dollars under two programs.

One is the Public Works and Redevelopment Act of 1965, which provides for 50 per cent funding in business development assistance, public works and development facilities and technical assistance.

The second is the Public Works Act of 1976, which was recently enacted over President Ford's veto. Title 1 of that act provides for 100 per cent funding for certain types of public works projects "ready to go." The act provides immediate job opportunities.

While the $3 billion has been authorized by Congress, the money has yet to be appointed. The legislation specifies preference will be given, once the money is freed, to areas of persistently high unemployment.

County Manager M. D. Tarshes said a county-approved overall economic development program is a prerequisite for grants under the 1965 Act and "will improve our chances for grant approval under the 1976 Act."

The 13 cities and the county are independently drawing up plans for a combined 150 projects, ranging from parks to street widenings to dikes to water system improvements to housing construction.

Examples of what some of the cities are proposing to do if funds are secured:

- Belmont: Ballfields on school grounds, Carlmont Canyon Park development, downtown parking improvements, various street improvements;
- Brisbane: Sierra Point Marina complex, a golf course; Burlingame: Construction of parking decks, bike path bridge, upgrading of water supply systems in east Burlingame; redevelopment of downtown area post office for parking, Broadway grade separation, widening of Peninsula Avenue.

- Daly City: New structures at Westlake and Serramonte shopping center, miscellaneous community redevelopment projects; Foster City: Fill project for Town Center area, levee repairs, park expansions.

- Millbrae: Rehabilitation of Airport Plaza hotel, potential development of a new 400-room hotel, widening of Millbrae Avenue overpass, a 68-unit subdivision, widening of Millbrae Avenue; Pacifica: Construction of 97 view apartments, a city corporation yard, a transfer station for solid waste disposal.

- Redwood City: Expansion of the Port of Redwood City, a senior citizens center, a civic center complex; San Bruno: several park developments, an 84-unit condominium development, a community center, library improvements, and a park corporation yard.

- San Carlos: An off-ramp to connect Holly Street to Brittan Avenue, creek improvements; San Mateo: Bay dike reconstruction, a Laurie Meadows underpass, marina lagoon improvements, central islands along El Camino Real and downtown improvements.

- South San Francisco: Public safety complex, civic center renovation, Airport Boulevard improvements; County: Coyote Point museum, solid waste and water quality management, and several improvements in East Palo Alto and North Fair Oaks.

Demos Plan Annual Picnic

Le Pacini

Last week I wrote of Joye Ogradowski and her efforts to put together a book about her father, Ogie Ogradowski, former Seals catcher, and once Dizzy Dean's favorite backstop. Included in the column were several anecdotes about Ogie, which would probably appear in the book, and then space ran short and there was a note, "A little more about Ogie next week." So it's next week, now, and here's a little more:

Ogradowski, who was somewhat pudgy, to say the least, was noted for his culinary habits. Once, Ogie was rooming with third baseman Ted Jennings in a Hollywood hotel room containing, much to Ogie's relief, a kitchen equipped with an electric stove.

There was also a radio for entertainment, which was good, because unless Ogie was eating and Jennings had a bat in his hands, neither of them were fascinating company.

Ogie was overcome by the possibilities of the kitchen one midnight and decided on a snack of ham and eggs.

While the food was sizzling, Jennings thought a little music would be appropriate, even though Ogie gave Ted notice that he wouldn't dance with him. Ted nonetheless turned the knob on the radio, but there was no reaction from the tubed marvel. Ogradowski, who had always fancied himself a handyman, swung into action.

"Leave it to me," said Ogie. "I'll fix it."

He grabbed a wooden-handled knife and probed the socket connection. There was a report that the lights throughout the motel went out, which was probably accurate, because at the moment of the report, Ogie was sitting on the floor holding a smoking wooden handle.

"Don't just stand there," Ted, screamed Ogie. "Turn on the lights."

Jennings worked the switch. No result. There was silence, too, from the electric stove. The ham and eggs no longer sizzled.

"Don't worry," said the resourceful Ogie. "I'll get lights."

He went out and came back later with a box of birthday candles. By their flickering little party lights, Ogie and Ted thus ate half-done ham and eggs. It was festive, but not very.

The following day, southpaw hurler Tom Seaver dropped in for a visit, slipped a quarter into a slot in the radio, and sat down and listened to some music. Ogie threw out the birthday candles and Jennings made a wish not suitable for reproduction in a family newspaper.

OLD NEWS: Whether he was right or wrong in what he said about Bill Rigney and his teammates, The Count of Montefusco pulled a terrible PR blunder with his popping off about the latter. The Count had had the public and the press eating out of his hands prior to his blowup.

Though there are undoubtedly still fans and writers on his side, he is no longer the darling of a large segment of fans and writers — as I read it — because of what appeared to be a selfish, unsportsmanlike and, at the least, an immature blast.

In fact, he showed little class in grousing about a game that his team won but that he didn't get the credit for because Rigney pulled him out when he was obviously tiring. Ironically, Montefusco admitted later that he was "losing it."

No doubt, there are now going to be those who will be wondering whether The Count is a phony and a hypocrite.

If Chris Speier can ever think of the team long enough to get himself comfortable with second base, and then regain his hitting form, it will be a big plus to the Giants to have a second baseman who can hit .260, 10-12 homers, and drive in 60-70 runs.

LOCAL OLD NEWS: Vacation time has made your man-about-town terribly remiss in acknowledging several outstanding local achievements, so they follow, in brief.

John Preston, who just 10 years ago was playing Little League ball in Pacifica, was named president of the same league, making him, at 22, the youngest person ever elected president of a local Little League.

Pacific weightlifter Dan Cantore took twelfth in the lightweight division at the Olympic Games. In 1972 at Munich he placed ninth.

Gil Amonte, Terra Nova's outstanding 105-pound wrestler, spent a month in Poland, where he trained and wrestled, a trip he earned by placing first in freestyle and Greco-Roman wrestling at Skyline College tournaments. His goal is the 1980 Olympics.

Another hopeful for the Moscow Olympics is Oceana junior Elaine Parker, who, representing the Millbrae Lions Track Club in the United States-Soviet junior track and field meet at Tallinn in the Soviet Union, this past summer, scored the only American women's win, a 100 meter triumph in 11.5. Elaine's victory was one of the rare few ever garnered by a San Mateo County athlete in amateur international competition.

Cliff Gosse, a 15-year-old incoming Oceana freshman, won the 38 kilos (83½ pounds) division in the World Wrestling Championships at Minneapolis. Gosse was the only Californian on the 14 man United States team and only the seventh Northern Californian in the history of the Pacific AAU to complete in the championships. The tournament was for 15-year-olds and under. Gosse represents the Peninsula Grapplers.

Ken Gallo, former Terra Nova record setting pole vaulter (13-4½, 1965) can't put the big stick down. Now a San Mateo County Sheriff's deputy, Gallo set a state record in his old event in the recent annual Police Olympics in San Jose. Competing against 14 other vaulting cops from throughout the state, Gallo shot up to 13-3.

Bill Amable, Bob Shopes and Doug Atkinson, who comprised Terra Nova's greatest-ever relay team last year, were among those selected as prep track and field "Athletes of the Year" for 1976 in Coach and Athlete Magazine.

It was a bad break for Tony Solaita, the former Jefferson High whiz, when he was traded away from a potential World Series by Kansas City to California, but a good break for him when he got to the West Coast and got a chance to play every day. And he hasn't blown it, as he's been the Angel's most productive hitter since they put him in the lineup.

ODDS 'N' ENDS: Giant rookie pitcher Rob Dressler, who lost his starting status with a string of losses, is a good example of how a pitcher hurts himself when he isn't a good ball player.

I can remember two games which Dressler directly lost for himself with his own terrible baserunning, and two others when he probably would have won had he known how to field his position. And while on that subject, is it my imagination that pitchers are making more errors this year than they ever have? Or is that just Giants pitcher, who must be setting a record.

And while on the subject of Giants errors, consider the fact that as of this writing Bobby Murcer, ordinarily a truly fine defensive outfielder, has 11 of 'em. Closest to him in the NL is Jimmy Wynn, but he has only eight and a higher fielding average.

Leader in the AL is Detroit's Ron LeFlore, who also has eight errors, but a respectable fielding average. In fact, at .953, only two outfielders in all of baseball — Dave Parker of Pittsburgh and Ollie Brown of Philly, have worse F.A.'s.

To show how terrible such a fielding average is for an outfielder, if Murcer were a shortstop, he would be next to the bottom in the NL; if a third baseman, in the bottom third of the league.

Squeeze-Inn Still Unbeaten

Squeeze-Inn remained undefeated in the Big League division, sponsored by the Daly City Recreation Department. Squeeze-Inn overpowered Toto's to win 18-13.

Ricky Lintz led the way with a home run and fine defense. Mel's Westlakers defeated the Sobs 14-7 with a total of 17 hits. Reid Bothardt led the victory with three hits including a double, triple and two RBIs.

John Stack and Bob Ahern also collected two hits each for Mel's. The Glen Club shut out the Regal Selects 10-0 to even their wins and losses at three each. Rich Nelson pitched an excellent game and had good defensive plays to back him up, along with the team's 13 hits. Mel's Westlakers edged Mayta & Jensen in a close game 9-8. Led by the excellent base running of John Stack and the hitting power of Bruce Costello the Westlakers were able to gain the victory.

On Gomez Passing

Victory for CSM

By FRED BAER
Post Correspondent

REEDLEY — It took perhaps the greatest passing performance in the more than half century gridiron history at College of Santa Mateo, but the Bulldogs returned from Reedley over the weekend with 38-21 season opening victory.

CSM hosted Santa Rosa JC (also 1-0) Saturday at 1:30 p.m.

Reedley College erupted for 21 second-quarter points to take a 21-10 halftime lead and apparent command of the game before the Bulldogs made some important adjustments in a game that saw a combined 800 yards of offense.

The end result was the highest point total run up by any school in the 30 opening weekend California Community College games as CSM soph quarterback Randy Gomez hit on 17 of 23 passes for 345 yards and five touchdowns.

The latter two marks are considered CSM records, as is Gomez' .739 completion percentage.

Soph Paul Bachtold and John O'Leary were on the receiving end of all the bombs. South San Francisco grad Bachtold, who had a CSM single season record 40 pass receptions last year, caught eight Saturday night for 201 yards, including TDs of 38, 17 and 70 yards. O'Leary, like Gomez a Serra grad, grabbed five for 110 yards and had TDs of 76 and three yards.

San Mateo scored on four straight possessions in the second half — although the momentum started slowly. Reedley held the Bulldogs on downs on the first series after the intermission, but fumbled a punt return which Clarence Edwards recovered for CSM on the Tiegler 17. Gomez then immediately hit Bachtold, who was wide open on the five, and cut the margin to 21-17.

Reedley came back with its own big play. Running back Ken Perry, on third and one from his own 29, broke into the open and threatened to score before CSM linebacker Jim Ratcliffe tripped him from behind 86 yards later on the five. The Bulldog goal line stand was successful, Frank Duncan knocking down a fourth down pass to end the last Tiger threat.

"That was the turning point of the game," said CSM coach Bill Dickey. "It could have put them ahead 28-17."

Circle Star Hosts Boxing

Redwood City fighter Leo Oliver will make his pro boxing debut Wednesday as the Garden City Boxing Club presents its second monthly "night at the fights" program at the Circle Star Theatre in San Carlos.

The card, which gets underway at 8 p.m., will showcase new boxing talent in the Bay Area. Other fighters scheduled to be on the card are Jose Talamantez, Erwin Williams and Willie Hearn.

Tickets are $5 and are available at the Circle Star Theatre box office and the Mug in Menlo Park.

Skyline Is Fifth Best

Skyline College finished fifth in the Pebble Beach Invitational, opening the cross country season Saturday. Powerful Mt. San Antonio College took the team title with 21 points, ahead of San Jose CC (77), while host Monterey Peninsula was third with 84 — showing signs of challenging for Skyline's Coast Conference crown.

Migrating here is not easy.

According to Martha Davis, a graduate student at San Francisco State University who has done a study of Samoan youngsters here in the Bay Area. "Unfortunately, most of these Samoan youths have little or no work experience, a poor command of English and little real understanding of the technologically advanced, complex American urban society."

She says 62 per cent of the high school graduates in American Samoa plan to come to the United States.

Still, most Samoans from American Samoa have already immigrated here.

There are 28,000 Samoans living in American Samoa and 72,000 of them living in America, most of them in California.

In all, there are about 166,000 Samoans living in American and Western Samoa.

It is estimated that there are about 57,000 people living in Tonga. How many Tongans there are in America has not been determined.

nurses' aides in hospitals and rest homes. They are industrious, friendly and good-natured people but, because this society is different from that of the islands, they can run into trouble here. "They don't understand the rules," says San Mateo Attorney Jeff Cost, a man who has represented a number of Tongans in legal matters. "They often don't obtain the necessary licenses they need. Many don't have drivers' licenses but they drive anyway. Their concept of time is different from ours too. In many respects, theirs is a closed society. I'm not really sure what can be done about it. No one seems to care much about them."

"The economic problems of America and Tonga are very different," says Reverend Noland of the Hillsdale church.

"There is abundant production of crops in Tonga. But here the Tongans don't farm. Their skills aren't needed."

Complicating efforts to serve the diverse Polynesian community is the fact that Tongans and Samoans do not get along well together. Altercations between young Tongans and Samoans have become routine along the Peninsula. One fight erupted Aug. 22 outside a Burlingame American Legion hall. Past struggles there have brought several police departments to the assistance of Burlingame officers trying to break up the combatants. In this latest skirmish, several people were treated for wounds, a number of automobiles were damaged with tire irons and jacks and there were some arrests.

"It would appear that the night of Aug. 22 is yet another episode in the seemingly (endless) battle between the two cultures," the police report summarized.

The previous afternoon there had been a fight between blacks and Tongans in a parking lot at the Martin Luther King Recreation Center in San Mateo. Three days later there was yet another rumble between Tongans and blacks in the same area. Police were called to a home on North Eldorado and an arrest was made. A Tongan youth was charged with disturbing the peace and malicious mischief. An arrest warrant was requested for a second Tongan involved in the fray. Racial pride runs deep among Tongans and Samoans. Some of those interviewed expressed concern that any sort of story which might detail what has been occurring in San Mateo County would necessarily reflect badly on them. Ethnic feelings are easily hurt and this is one of the reasons that tempers sometimes flare among young Polynesians who must confront the pluralistic American society and its host of essential differences. But Polynesians, in spite of the differences in their lifestyle, appear to be hungry to learn. Samoan and Tongan parents believe in the value of an American education. Of all the U.S. institutions which are feeling the pressure from these new ethnic minorities, the public schools are in the forefront. In this county, local school districts are suddenly discovering significant numbers of Polynesian children in their midst. But the districts have little information about their cultures. The lack of communication between the schools, the children and the Polynesian parents is striking. Few districts have programs to educate their students and staffs about the Polynesians and their unique needs and habits. Some of the results have been needlessly dramatic. For example: At Turnbull Middle School in San Mateo, Polynesian students lined up against blacks and whites for a time. That dispute got blown out of proportion and simmered for weeks. At Burlingame High School on March 23 of this year, several young Tongans who were not students there arrived on campus and a fight ensued. When a white teacher tried to stop the struggle, he was kicked and beaten so badly he had to spend two days recuperating at Peninsula Hospital. He was kicked unconscious during the melee. It took 20 stitches to close a head wound. The incident shocked the school. It was viewed by the community as perhaps the worst racial incident the school had ever seen. School administrators and teachers are not sure how to deal with Polynesian youngsters who come to class in a bruised and seemingly battered condition. Are these child abuse cases? If they are, who should handle them? According to Dr. David Thomas, superintendent of the San Mateo City School District, discipline in Polynesian homes can be quite physical. The schools have their work cut out for them. One teacher at Burlingame High School says, "They (the Polynesians) are as ill-prepared as any group in our history."

Burlingame and the San Mateo Union High School District of which it is a part is attempting to adjust to the new population.

Last semester, the district hired a Tongan community aide, Vaitai Vaitai of San Mateo, one of a family of eight children.

She says there were 78 Polynesian students at district schools last semester. The district is one of the few in the Bay Area which breaks out South Pacific Islanders into a separate ethnic category in its racial surveys.

Most of them attend either Burlingame or Capuchino in San Bruno because, those two schools have special English programs.

"Our students, especially the boys, don't understand their roles in American schools," Miss Vaitai says.

In Tonga, the teacher can physically punish a student. Here, the teacher cannot. The parents like the Tongan system of discipline. Parents strike the children at home and they expect more discipline from the schools.

It can be very embarrassing for a Polynesian parent when the school announces that the child is somehow failing.

And if a dispute between students at school should come up, Polynesians often prefer to settle things with a fight. That is their custom. And it is frowned upon here.

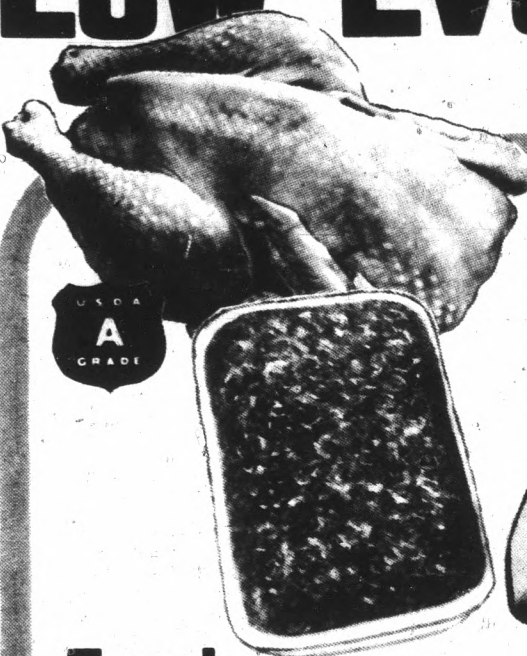

"Basically," explains Miss Vaitai, "Polynesians are a very friendly, warm people."

"But don't get one of them mad at you or you're in trouble," warns a Burlingame police official.

After the March fight at Burlingame High School, one suspect was placed in a straitjacket and taken to the Burlingame jail. The then proceeded to bite and tear at his padded cell with his teeth.

"He literally ate the cell," marvels a Burlingame detective.

More Cutbacks Seen

With a new city budget not even due on the city council's desk until next spring, Pacifica City Manager Don Weidner recently predicted massive cutbacks in a city budget already cut "farther than fat."

Weidner, speaking to a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce Thursday, reacted critically to a statement in the newspapers by the county tax assessor that Pacifica's assessments will go up 45 per cent this year.

"We don't know how to project revenue," he said. "Unfortunately you can't spend newspaper reports. Calls to the assessor have produced dead silence."

If assessments go up as expected, however, Weidner said, the taxpayer will insist on further cutbacks in services to avoid a tax increase.

"You (the city) are dangerously low on brainpower," he told the businessmen. "We're just answering phones. We're not doing any managing."

A recent decision by the council to turn off 450 street lights as an economy produced the most intense reaction of any issue he has seen during his two years as manager.

In addition, the city has halved its street sweeping budget and taken a "tremendous slice" from the technical staff, with more layoffs probable.

Weidner said the city staff is pressuring for a revision of the general plan, one more in line with "realistic" expectations for Pacifica.

Businessmen ought to "exploit in a quality, high class way" the recreational value of the beach area, he said.

"The coast draws tourists who love to spend money," he said. "There is a warehouse of tourists stored in San Francisco and they are easy to draw here."

"We've got to stop worrying about attracting industry. We have to set more realistic goals. And it's about time the community started making some decisions for itself instead of just letting things happen."

The audience applauded enthusiastically.

Touching on a broad range of problems, Weidner said there is a 50-50 chance the state Water Quality Control Board will impose a sewer ban on the city for alleged violations once a hearing is held Sept. 21 in Oakland.

As far as he knows, he said, a rumor that an injunction will be imposed Sept. 16 against the city's proceeding with a secondary sewage treatment plant is "just rumor so far."

The primary plan has been a keen source of embarrassment for city officials following complaints of neighbors in the Sharp Park area that it smells bad.

Pay Less Buys Stores

Castle & Cooke Inc., has reached an agreement in principle for the sale, at an undisclosed amount, of the bulk of its Value Giant self-service merchandising operations to Pay Less Drug Stores Northwest Inc. of Portland, Ore.

The transaction was announced simultaneously Thursday by Castle & Cooke and Pay Less Northwest. It is expected to be completed in about one month.

The sale includes 21 Value Giant stores in Northern California, Oregon and Washington. Pay Less Northwest operates a chain of 57 super drug stores in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Northern California and Colorado.

The sale by Castle &

Cooke is part of plan to divest itself of its West Coast general merchandising operations because they have not provided the desired return," D. J. Kirchhoff, Castle & Cooke President, said.

Castle & Cooke's West Coast general merchandising activities have been operated by a subsidiary, Castle & Cooke Merchandising Corp., headquartered at Brisbane.

The sale would not include Castle & Cooke Merchandising's Wholesale drug and sundries business nor its office and warehouse complex at 123 South Hill Drive, Brisbane.

The wholesale business and warehouse operation will be continued through the end of January 1977 to accommodate Castle &

Merchandising's present wholesale customers for the coming Christmas shopping season.

These remaining facilities then will be closed and offered for sale, he said.

Castle & Cooke, whose business is primarily in foods (Dole bananas, pineapple and mushrooms) and Bumble Bee Seafoods, entered the self-service general merchandising field in 1966.

For the fiscal year ended Jan. 3, Castle & Cooke reported net income of $38,160,000 on revenues of $843,051,000.

For its fiscal year ended Jan. 31, Pay Less Northwest reported net income of $5,840,000 on revenues of $193,396,000.
